Major Bevier emphasized that the revised program was a simplification of existing German activities and that it would be administered by anti-Nazi German officials with German supplies and funds and without outside aid being provided by the United Nations. German Jews In U. S. Zone Get Special Aid

The victims of the Nazi system who suffered because of racial, religious or political activity now are eligible for special welfare benefits from the German local governments in the United States zone of occupation, according to a directive issued by the Public Welfare section of G-5 at United States Headquarters.

The directive also comes to the aid of thousands of Jews and anti-Fascists in the United States zone by stating that welfare priorities are to be given to "individuals who have been on starvation diets or otherwise in need because of their adherence to the Allied cause."

The directive declares that "German nationals who have been persecuted because of race, religion or activities in support of the United Nations" will be entitled to the same assistance priorities granted United States displaced persons. Oddly, the directive adds that this assistance will be available "when their loyalty" has been determined, something which would seem to be already proved.

Although the directive says that these victims of the Nazis are to receive the same assistance priorities as displaced persons, it does not make aid available to a Polish displaced person in any one of the camps run by the combined displaced persons executive council.

However, previous to the issuing of the directive, the Nazi welfare system, which was still employed under the United States Military Government, included special categories of relief beneficiaries, several of which made it possible for

Zionists Score Arab Story Of Roosevelt Pledge

The American Zionist Emergency Council issued a statement contending that the late President Roosevelt had favored opening Palestine to unrestricted Jewish immigration. It criticized a report from Cairo that Abdul Rahman Azzam Bey, secretary general of the new Arab League, had said that Mr. Roosevelt had opposed such immigration.

"In a statement issued by Azzam Bey, secretary general of the new Arab League, a highly dramatic account is given of an alleged pledge by President Roosevelt to King Ibn Saud, according to which the late President placed his hand in the hand of Ibn Saud and swore that he would not support the claims of the Zionists," the Zionists' statement said.

"President Roosevelt issued a widely-publicized statement on October 15, 1944, in which he referred to the plank in the democratic party platform favoring 'the opening of Palestine to unrestricted Jewish immigration and colonization, and such a policy as to result in the establishment there of a free and democratic Jewish commonwealth', and in which he declared, 'I am convinced that the American people give their support to this aim and if re-elected I shall help to bring about its realization.'

"On March 16, 1945, after his return from Yalta and of course subsequent to his interview with Ibn Saud, President Roosevelt allowed it to be stated on his behalf in an initialed note to Dr. Stephen S. Wise that he had made clear his position on Zionism in the Oct. 15 statement, that this position remained unchanged, and that

...heard from the Head of any "alleged" promise to him. It concluded that "the story put out by Azzam Bey is manufactured out of whole cloth."

Bernard Rosenblatt, an United States Zionist leader, declared in Birmingham, England, that talk of a Jewish-Arab conflict was "over done" and said that peace would come to Palestine when Britain evolved a definite policy of

Children Are Out Of Nazi Camps

All of the Jewish children found in German concentration camps by the British and American Armies already have been removed to France, Sweden, Switzerland and England, Arthur D. Greenleigh, assistant executive head of the Joint Distribution Committee in Europe disclosed.

Even after liberation every day now "a great many" youngsters die, so that of untold numbers deported to Germany from occupied countries only "a little more than 2,000" remained to be rescued, he said.

Just back from a year in Europe and scheduled to return soon for the welfare agency, Mr. Greenleigh told how a committee of adult Jews in Buchenwald urged relief workers soon after they arrived: "Take out the children quickly. They must be saved."

In June and July every town in the British and American zones was searched for "stateless" Jewish children, he said. Those found were mainly in their 'teens, he went on, because "no young children were permitted to live."

Using every possible means of tracing separated families, the agency has been able to repatriate about 200 youngsters, sending them to rejoin "relatives, but, unfortunately, not parents," in most cases, Mr. Greenleigh said.

About 850 others were sent to England and Switzerland, about 1,000 to Sweden and 500 to France, with J.D.C., alone or in cooperation with other agencies, responsible for their maintenance and re-education, he said.

In France, however, about 3,000 youngsters who were hidden in non-Jewish homes or institutions during the occupation are also being cared for by J.D.C. Most of them, he explained, are "in all kinds and purposes orphans."

Greece Acts Against Looters Of Jews

All persons who stole Jewish property during the German occupation of Greece will be fully prosecuted unless they return it to their rightful owners, Vice-Minister of Finance Michael Pesmazoglou informed the Athens representative of the Joint Distribution Committee, Israel Jacobson. Mr. Pesmazoglou issued orders to courts throughout Greece to the effect that direct action must be taken against all those who looted homes and shops belonging to Jews.

Mr. Jacobson, who has been carrying on the J.D.C.'s relief and rehabilitation programs for the surviving 8,500 Greek Jews, reported to the organization's New York headquarters that "decisive action" will be taken against all those who in any way jeopardize the status of the Jews in Greece. He was invited by Minister Pesmazoglou to accompany him on a tour of Salonika, Jannina and other communities to observe how the government's orders are being carried out.

Of a pre-war population of 55,000, only 8,500 Jews are living in Greece today. The Joint Distribution Committee, major American

Iraq Regent Calls Number Of Jews In Palestine Sufficient

Emir Abdul Ilah, Regent of Iraq, told C. P. Sulzberger, of the New York Times, in Paris, that his country could in no way agree to an increase in Jewish immigration into Palestine and that therefore he could not accept President Truman's views on the establishment of a Jewish national home in that bitterly contested Levantine land which is holy to three of the world's greatest religions.

In an interview on his way home to Baghdad from the United States the youthful Regent for the boy King Feisal II said:

"No Arab will agree with any suggestion for an increase in the Jewish population of Palestine. The number already there is sufficient. All Arab nations must object in principle and I believe that our Government will protest to the United Nations against any such moves."

The Emir emphasized that he was in no position to know whether any such steps had yet been taken by Baghdad because he had been traveling for weeks. He was driving down to Monte Carlo, Rome and Naples. At Naples he would board a British cruiser with his retinue en route for Istanbul, and drive home in his new Rolls Royce.

The Emir further emphasized that both Syria and Lebanon may rely on the fullest support of Iraq at any time they feel that their independence is menaced in any way.

The Emir's visit to Turkey will be the first official visit by an Arab ruler since the Ottoman Empire collapsed with the Sultan's flight and the Arab world was freed.

It is of additional interest that he will travel through the Dardanelles to Istanbul on the British cruiser Ajax. This will be the first British warship to enter the Sea of Marmora since before the war and occurs just at a time when revision of the Montreaux convention is under discussion, with Russia seeking to assume more responsibility and control in the Turkish Straits.

"In principle both Syria and Lebanon may count on our support if they are in trouble," the Emir said.

"We feel that they are our brothers and our neighbors. They are of the same race and origin. We hope there will be no further trouble between Damascus and Beirut on the one hand and France on the other, but if there is, they know we are behind them."

When asked whether any suggestion had been made to him that transit right for a pipeline across Southwestern Iraq should be

"Here comes our cheque Mummy!"

All over Canada, in cities, towns, villages and on farms, hundreds of thousands of men and women watch for the postman to bring dependents' allowance cheques as other people look for pay-day. They are people of all ages whose breadwinners are away on active service. They include returned men not yet back in civil life.

And soon there will be hundreds of thousands more back from the war. They will receive cheques to help them buy civilian clothes, to go to college, to get technical or vocational training, to start in business for themselves, or to set up as farmers or fishermen.

The banks have to be prepared to cash all official cheques for these and a dozen other purposes—and to do so anywhere in Canada without charge. In fact, the banks supply Canada with the nationwide machinery to facilitate a grateful country's plans for restoring service men and women to civilian life.

This is a tremendous task. It will entail a vast amount of bookkeeping. But you can be sure that your banks will take it in their stride without impairing regular banking service.

The Doctors, Lawyers and Dentist's Association of Prague voted to reinstate Jewish members expelled by the Nazis on racial grounds. Zionist activities are being squelched by the hostility of the Government which refuses to legalize the movement. Recently liberated Zionist leaders have been forced to cease activities in Bohemia and Moravia.

Jews from Carpatho-Ruthenia have been denied citizenship in Bohemia and Moravia, on grounds that Art. 3 and 4 of the Soviet-Czechoslovak treaty of June 29, 1945, limits Czechoslovak citizenship to Czechs and Slovaks living in Carpatho-Ruthenia, excluding indigent Jews living there.

IRAQ REGENT

granted to an American company, he said:

"I have not heard of any such proposition."

There have been rumors that the Arabian American Oil Company, which has immense concessions on the Persian gulf shores of Saudi Arabia is interested in constructing a pipeline to the Mediterranean across the corner of Iraq to Beirut or Tripoli, where other American companies have acquired rights to build refineries.

The Emir said Iraq's Government was demanding that the United Nations turn over Rashid Ali el Gailaini, rebel Prime Minister who led a revolt in 1941 and who has been sentenced to death in absentia.

However, he added that Rashid Ali's whereabouts is unknown.

The Emir said Iraq was making no claims on the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem who helped to foment trouble and revolt in Iraq and later fled to Iran, Turkey and Germany.

"We have nothing to do with the Mufti who is a Palestinian citizen," he said.

He has now been demanded as a war criminal by Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Government for inciting brutalities and for pro-German activities among Bosnian Moslems.

The Cairo radio, heard by the British Broadcasting Corporation, said that a deputation of the Palestinian Arab party lodged a protest with the American Consul General at Jerusalem against President Truman's recent statement favoring unrestricted Jewish immigration into Palestine.

The party sent another note, through the secretary of the Arab League, demanding that control of Jewish immigration into Palestine be tightened under control of Arab officials who have the confidence of the people.

ZIONISTS SCORE

Jewish immigration to that country.

He said that Britain was mistaken if she thought she could "make friends with the Arabs by continually yielding and carrying on a Munich appeasement policy."

Mr. Rosenblatt then added:

"I think it is very important for British public opinion to come to the conclusion that the good-will of 5,000,000 Jews in America is worth at least as much as unfounded fears of 1,000,000 Arabs in Palestine or Moslem populations massed in India."

agency affording relief and rehabilitation to distressed Jews overseas, has set up a $200,000 loan fund to aid approximately 1,000 family heads re-establish themselves in small businesses. During the first six months of this year the Committee has appropriated $500,000 for its relief operations in Greece.

In addition, the J.D.C. has set up emergency shelter programs for homeless Jews; arranged for the care of the aged; provided funds for a summer health program for about 200 destitute children, as well as for the equipment of a medical dispensary and the repair of synagogues and communal institutions.

WERFEL APPLIED

Lourdes, France, he vowed, if he ever escaped, to "sing as best he could her song."

After he reached the United States, he fulfilled his pledge. Writing in pen and ink on schoolboy tablets he turned out "The Song of Bernadette." He wrote it twice in German; then dictated a third and final version. The translation was made by Ludwig Lewisohn.

The book was translated into seven languages. A motion picture, which won five Academy Awards, was filmed around it by Twentieth Century-Fox. Mr. Werfel worked closely with the studios in preparing the film and approved the selection of a screen newcomer, Jennifer Jones, for the title role.

"Belief in the Divine," he wrote in "The Song of Bernadette," "is nothing other than the substantially convinced recognition of the fact that the world is meaningful, that is to say, a spiritual world. When the last vestige of the world's meaning is obliterated in a soul — a very rare occurrence — madness assumes mastery. Thence it comes that ages which deny the Divine meaningfulness of the universe are smitten even to blood by collective madness, however reasonable and enlightened they may be."

His first visit to the United States was made to attend the Max Reinhardt production of his pageant, "The Eternal Road," a recital of the glorious episodes of the Old Testament. Explaining his motive in writing the pageant, he said, "In this age of paganism, all I have tried to do was to bring out the truth, the tolerance, the love and by all means the culture that is contained in the Bible . . . My only political credo is to search for humanity everywhere and to avoid barbarism."

Characterized as an "ecstatic and a hymnic," Mr. Werfel instilled his faith in a Divine Being and in the spiritual union of mankind into his best work. Nor did two World Wars and the vicissitudes of flight from the Nazis disturb this faith or embitter him.

An indirect result of his flight from the Nazis was a play, "Jacobowsky And The Colonel," written in collaboration with S. N. Behrman and produced by the Theatre Guild.

Born September 10, 1890, in Prague, then a city of Austria-Hungary, later the capital of Czechoslovakia, he was the son of Rudolph and Albine Kussy Werfel. He studied at the Volkschule in Prague, the Gymnasium, the University of Prague and the University of Leipzig.

The Werfels were a wealthy Jewish family. His father, a manufacturer, looked to him to carry on the business upon his own retirement and sent him to the gymnasium and to the university in Prague. From his father's point of view the youth's educational career was deplorable, but while still a university student, Franz Werfel had a poem published by "The Vienna Zeit."

Franz Werfel, destined by his father to be a placid man of business, became instead widely known as a poet, dramatist and novelist. By far the greater part of his writings were turned out amid conflict. He wrote as an irreconcilable during the World War and during the Nazi return to barbarism. His books were among those burned in the cultural bonfire at Salzburg in 1938.

Of the 200 sizeable properties formerly owned by the Jews of Frankfurt-am-Main, only 56 escaped destruction and 20 are half destroyed.

TO THE CANADIAN PUBLIC
WE SAY

Thank You

DURING the war, so happily ended, the Canadian National had a gigantic task to do.

Our ability to fulfill this duty to the credit and satisfaction of the Nation is due, not only to the skill, devotion and zeal of those who are our workers, but in large measure to the Canadian Public who, by their generous responses to appeals for help and their uncomplaining acceptances of restrictions and controls, lightened our burden.

We wish to thank the Canadian Public sincerely for their help — the millions of passengers who used our trains and steamships, the shippers of freight and express, the guests in our hotels, the patrons of our telegraph and other services, and the unnumbered citizens who refrained from travelling needlessly as their contribution to the common cause.

The surrender of the last enemy has ended the fighting but it has not ended the war job of the Canadian National Railways. The men and women in the Services have to be brought home without delay and for that purpose we shall continue to employ all our available passenger equipment. Millions of tons of materials must be transported for industrial reconversion.

So in saying "Thank You" we express the hope that in carrying out these and other extensions of our war job, we may continue to enjoy the understanding of the Canadian Public.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR of PEACE!

The Victory Year, 5705, passes into history. It was a good year, but a sad one, too. It saw the defeat of Hitler and his cohorts and the militarist rulers of Japan; it also saw much blood spilled in the battle for freedom.

As this New Year begins for the People of Israel, the prayers of all are that 5706 will see the rebuilding of shattered European Jewry well on its way, along with the binding of the wounds of all Nazi victims. May 5706 be remembered in Jewish history as the year when the United Nations laid the corner-stone of the Structure of Peace and Justice, the permanent guarantee that Hamans and Hitlers will never rise to power again.

To our friends at home and those still abroad, we send the traditional greeting of the season: —"May you be inscribed for a good year!"

The Russian-controlled Berlin radio advised Germans to rid themselves of racism if they want to be re-admitted into the community of nations, and to supplant the Nazi slogan "Jews are our misfortune" with a new slogan "Racial biology is the curse of our people."

Father Chailley, head of the resistance welfare organization declared at an anniversary meeting of the first mass arrests of Jews in Paris, that the Catholic clergy has no intention of holding on to the Jewish children rescued by its members during the German occupation.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Bronfman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Bronfman, Westmount Avenue, to Lieut. (j.g.) The synagogue was decorated with arches of all white gladioli and the altar was banked with palms and pink and white gladioli. Lighted white tapers marked the pews. Mr. Bronfman gave his daughter away. Her sister, Mrs. J. E. Butler, of New York, was matron of honor. Other attendants were Mrs. Alfred E. They had blue ostrich hats and carried bouquets of apricot-colored gladioli. Mrs. Berns, the bridegroom's mother, was in shell-pink, embroidered in seed pearls, with a pink tulle hat, and a corsage also of white hybrid orchids. The reception was held in the ballroom and the Normandie Roof of the Mount Royal Hotel. Palms with pink and white gladioli and sweetheart roses composed the decorations. An orchestra played for the wedding ceremony and reception. The couple have gone to Savannah, Georgia, for their honeymoon. He's ready to Go to Work

He has knowledge and initiative!

The navy has many men like this veteran of convoy routes and landing operations. His duty done, he's coming ashore to put his training to civilian use.

He has learned a lot and learned it thoroughly; at sea there's no room for half-measures. For a ship to survive, each one of the crew must know his job and do it with authority. Whether he's an engine-room artificer, a coder, telegraphist, stoker, writer or gunner, he's an expert and well capable of applying his specialized knowledge in many civilian fields. To that end he's been taking special Vocational Training along those very lines.

To employers needing competent men accustomed to responsibility and sparked by initiative, he and his mates are sure bets.

Students At Hebrew University Are From Many Countries

The University intends to establish a Museum of Jewish Cultural Treasures of Europe which will house everything of value in the fields of science, art and Judaica which can be salvaged. Each country in Europe will be assigned a special department.

In the academic year 1944-45 the number of students enrolled at the Hebrew University has risen from 560 to 610. The great majority, 478, received their secondary school education in Palestine. The rest came from secondary schools in twenty other countries, as follows: Poland, 38; Rumania, 28; Germany and Austria, 16; Czechoslovakia, 9; Hungary, 6; Egypt, 9; Bulgaria, 1; Latvia, 2; Holland, 1; England, 1; Lithuania, 3; Yugoslavia, 1; Russia, 4; Iraq, 2; Turkey, 5; Lebanon, 1; Transjordan, 2; South Africa, 1; India, 1; Denmark, 1. The large preponderance of Palestinian students, which is a wartime phenomenon, is due to the stoppage of immigration. Of the 610 students, 344 are enrolled in the faculty of humanities; 239 in the faculty of science; and 27 in the School of Agriculture. 390 are men and 240 women.

The University's extension work in the field of adult education took on major proportions during the academic year 1934-44. 3,560 lectures were given during this period in the University's country-wide extension courses as against 1200 lectures in the preceding year.

The lectures were given in 155 localities, namely 3 cities, 27 villages, 112 labor settlements and 13 army camps. Among the 128 lecturers who participated, there were 49 Professors and Lecturers, 15 instructors, 29 assistants and 26 graduates of the University. 53% of the lectures dealt with natural sciences; 32% with Jewish studies; 13% with general humanities (Arts); and the rest with general subjects.

The tremendous development of this extension work during the past few years is illustrated by the fact that during the academic year 1940-41 the total number of extension lectures was only 407.

In response to 97,000 applications received by the Library in 1944, over 55,000 books were borrowed for home reading. Of close to 50,000 persons who came to the Library during the past year, 36,500 visited the main reading room, 8,000 the periodicals room, and over 5,000 the medical reading room. These readers made use not only of the large reference collections, but also of tens of thousands of volumes from other collections in the Library.

In addition to circulating books and maintaining the reading rooms, the Library extended various other services to the public; numerous replies were given to bibliographical and literary inquiries from all parts of the country and other public libraries sent members of their staffs to the University Library for additional professional training. Over 40 librarians from agricultural settlements attended such a course during the past year.

Dr. Nathan Feinberg of Tel Aviv has been appointed Lecturer in International Relations at the Hebrew University and will take up his teaching duties at the beginning of the academic year 1945-6. The chair teaches only during the winter term as other duties require his presence in England during the rest of the year. Dr. Feinberg was lecturer in International Relations at the University of Geneva and Professor in the Academie de Droit International in the Hague.

"A New Heart Also Will I Give You"

A NEW YEAR MESSAGE

By Dr. Louis Finkelstein, President of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, In New York

Can we Jews of America rise to the heights toward which the world-shaking events of our time are urging us? Can we become at long last the kingdom of priests and holy people which the Father of Prophecy called on us to become? Can we at last see that, weak and dispersed as we are, we may yet be able to alter the course of human life for many centuries to come if we can make the increase of faith in God, the betterment of man, and the improvement of our moral and spiritual condition our primary concern?

A world must be rebuilt. The consecration to its rebuilding will mean profounder devotion to our own spiritual values, our synagogues, our faith, to the study of the Torah, to the help of our brethren, to the establishment of a home in the Holy Land for those who desire or are compelled to seek its shelter.

Let us reconsider the Jewish education of our children. Let us set before them an example of good lives, devoted to God and to the service of fellow-men. Let us train them not merely by precept, but also by example. Let us increase not only their knowledge, but also their strength. Let us make our homes centers of spiritual influence to all who come into them.

Let us learn to look to God for help, let us learn to pray. Let us feel the presence of God about us with such vividness that the vanity and confusion in our lives will seem unworthy and be overcome. Let us think of the glorious opportunity for creative service which life in our generation implies, that the temptations to seek lesser goals than the liberation of mankind and service of God will appear in their true paltriness and insignificance.

Let us make the solemn days of Rosh Hashonah and Yom Kippur days of real penitence and repentance. Let us seek God in these days when He is to be found; and in the houses of worship where He is to be found. Perhaps then we may be able to [illegible]

One View Of What The Balfour Declaration Contains

The following appeared as a letter from Professor William Ernest Hocking, of Madison, N.H., to the New York Herald Tribune:

In your leading editorial, "For A Palestine State" (Aug. 18), you are enlisting the American conscience in a dubious adventure by a serious misstatement of the meaning of the Balfour Declaration. The matter is one of simple fact; but it has been so obscured by the misrepresentations with which this country has been flooded for two years past, and by which the Herald Tribune seems to have been misled, that I beg permission to restate the story.

The Balfour Declaration does not contain, as your words imply, any "promise of a Jewish national state". It was carefully worded to exclude this expectation; for in the negotiations leading to the declaration in November, 1917, certain Zionist leaders had urged "the reconstitution of Palestine as a Jewish state," and this had been definitely rejected. The declaration pledges the British government to "view with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people," providing carefully that "nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine." Neither here nor in the mandate under the League nor in the approving act of our own government is there any proposal that Palestine should become a Jewish state. This position was restated in 1922 in two White Papers, one by Churchill and one by Lord Passfield, in which it is reiterated that the special position of the Zionist executive "does not entitle it to share in any degree in the government." The Zionist community was to be within Palestine, and the positions and interests of Moslems and Christians—still there—were to be an equal charge of the mandatory power.

To have these facts straight is the first step toward being just in our judgments of Great Britain, of the Zionists, of the Arabs and of our own policies. It would be natural at this moment for the British government to reconsider the limitations on Jewish immigration into Palestine established in the White Paper of 1939, in the light of many new conditions, including among other things, the tremendous growth of Soviet influence in the Near East. But Britain may well hesitate to act while subject to pressure from the United States on the ground of a wholly non-existent promise, inconsistent with its own commitments and with ours.

The American conscience is indeed concerned. It is moved by the terrible fate of European Jews, and it seeks a prompt course of action. It is easily hurried to the irrelevant conclusion: "Therefore they must have Palestine; and those who raise questions are persons of ill will." But this same conscience would be revolted if it could see our nation becoming through its sympathies the tool of what I should consider a Zionist imperialism, tending to absorb and subordinate to its own ambitions the claims of a great people, resident for thirteen hundred years on Palestinian soil, having an equal concern in the new national growth opening to all peoples and equally recipient of Allied promises.

It is in the genius of America to welcome the honest pressure of its pressure groups, and having heard them, to be governed by a wider fairness of outlook. It is not American to allow our foreign policy to be bent by clamor. To give ourselves to a plausible but insufficiently examined policy which may involve the practical expropriation of a people militarily defenseless, endangers a truly considerate solution of the problem of Jewish resettlement which you rightly describe as a United Nations problem.

every friday

"Sometimes when people censure me,
I tell them without reason
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an 'anchor.'"

The Review has received a press release entitled Highlights of the World Zionist Conference as reported by S. J. Zacks, Co-President of the Zionist Organization of Canada who headed the Canadian delegation of the Conference. Mr. Zacks may have headed the delegation but, according to the Montreal Gazette, Moishe Dickstein, of Montreal, was accompanied to the conference in London, England, by Mr. Zacks and others. Mr. Dickstein represented the Labor Zionist Movement.

As far as Conference proposals being highlights is concerned, these have already appeared as news matter in the Review and, in this age of wonders, preceded rather than awaited the return of the Zionist delegation. They have to do with immigration into Palestine; an international loan; reparations from Germany; facilities for transport of Jews, and the like. The budget of the National Foundation Fund for the Jewish Agency was set at six million pounds. Mr. Zacks told the Conference that Canadian Zionists hoped to raise two million dollars for Palestine this year. He took part in debates and paid tribute to the memory of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Freiman, of Ottawa. Mr. Zacks told George Hall, British Secretary of State, that Palestine can absorb four million to five million Jews; and urged the removal of the White Paper.

The Conference heard a prayer for the Jews killed on the battlefields, on sea and in the air, and for those massacred and for the communities destroyed. Then came the speech of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, head of the World Zionist Organization, the only excerpt from which is the part in commemoration of the Jewish martyrs. Mr. Zacks recalled the heart-rending address of Elihu Dobkin, head of the Immigration Department of the Jewish Agency, who had just arrived from Germany where he attended near Munich the conference of one hundred and twenty delegates from concentration camps. His speech about their homelessness and their desire and need to go to Palestine takes up the rest of the report which, apparently, is all that the Zionist Organization of Canada wants the Jewish public to have from the delegation at the World Zionist Conference.

Mr. Dickstein, whose report on the state of the nation did not appear in news form in the Review because it appeared in the Montreal Gazette first, was also impressed by the tragic comments which he heard at the Conference about the condition of Jewish survivors in Europe. The difficulties in the way of opening the gates of Palestine were, in his opinion, exaggerated by those who oppose Jewish aspirations and British interests. Probably as an en passant reminder to President Truman, Mr. Dickstein reports that Palestine delegates said no troops are required to keep order in their country. Unless the Arab agitators receive help from foreign governments, says Mr. Dickstein, the Jews can hold their own.

So far, Mr. Dickstein has been very restraining, speaking, [illegible] and keeping to the well-worn paths of accustomed general discussion with regard to the Palestine situation. But something new has been added, according to the Montreal Gazette: Anti-Semitism was virtually non-existent in England, Mr. Dickstein observed. This is not an irresponsible statement, of course. Either the Gazette is up to some crafty trick and has managed to misquote Mr. Dickstein or Mr. Dickstein was placed under a strange sort of spell (which should be investigated by a commission) just before he braved the elements out over the seas, where there are still two German submarines on the loose, to return from his deliberations at the World Zionist Conference. Maybe the Gazette didn't let Mr. Dickstein finish. What he wanted to say was something like this: Anti-Semitism is virtually non-existent in England at a Zionist caucus. Or maybe he did actually say there is no anti-Semitism in England just out of the exuberance of the young in heart with a nice, sunny disposition, having had a wonderful time.

At any rate, there was more to the World Zionist Conference than has been disclosed to the delicate perceptions of the Canadian Jewish public, as can be gathered elsewhere, and even in part from the release to this paper from the Zionist Organization of America. A clue to what the dizzy heights were like may be seen from the report of Louis Lipsky who declared "that the London Conference was not only seriously affected by the change of political conditions in London but by the presence for the first time in six years of representatives of surviving Jewries. Their presence had an effect of paralyzing the sense of the delegates. After hearing the Jewish underground leaders from Poland and Dr. Beck, of Germany, the Conference should have adjourned to meditate." See?

Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, of Cleveland, Ohio, one of the main king-pins, said of "the visit which a Zionist delegation paid to the new Colonial Secretary Hall, that whereas it was often argued that Palestine was England's business, from now on the line is that cooperation and moral backing of the United States Government is essential in bringing about a final decision on Palestine." Another member of the American delegation, Daniel Frisch, "cautioned against placing too much reliance on the change of government in England in the expectation that it will spell speedy realization of our aims. He charged that the new Colonial Secretary's attitude toward our people is not of a nature that should make us rejoice."

Taking the prize for understatement, Dr. Silver merely referred to "the major crises, such as the withdrawal of the Mizrachi from the Executive and the temporary difference between Ben Gurion and Weizmann." But that's all that was said on this crucial subject.

The Mizrachi Party is the extreme Orthodox wing of the Zionist movement and is led by ultra-Orthodox Rabbis who violently oppose Weizmann and the Zionist Labor Party. They were enraged over Weizmann's speech at the Conference in London, that is over the part which was omitted in the press release from the Zionist Organization of Canada. In it he made a plea to the new British government to grant at once admission of 100,000 Jews to Palestine. His habitual moderation, his talk of cooperation with the Arabs, and his measured-out request were too milk-and-watery for the Mizrachi who demanded his removal and replacement by a presidium; and a promise that every Jewish child who gets to Palestine will receive an Orthodox upbringing.

The Mizrachi Party, busy as usual in the practice of politics for power, backed the demands of the extremist Zionist Revisionist Party, for readmission into the World Zionist Organization, in exchange for Revisionist support of Mizrachi religious demands in Palestine. But faith in militancy is not confined to this one alliance, as the Conference showed. The Mizrachi Rabbis hated and villified Weizmann for not being blood-and-guts, but, according to the Manchester Guardian, for one, the attack on Weizmann by Ben Gurion, the Palestine Labor Leader, was vicious, too, and of late his threats of trouble in Palestine have sounded like the defiance of a Revisionist.

The World Zionist Conference closed on a note of unity, naturally. But the internal crisis was there, on one side Illiberalism, on the other extremism, the struggle being between moderate citizens-for and the fanatical demanders-of. At the Conference it was a Conference rift but it was only a reflection of what is going on in the Zionist movement in the present situation of external crisis.

ROSH HASHONAH — NEW YEAR. SEPTEMBER 9, 1945

The traditional Jewish New Year (Rosh Hashonah) begins at sun-down Friday, September 7. Orthodox Jews celebrate for two days, the 8th and 9th. Services will be held in Synagogues and Army Camps as well throughout the world on the evenings of the 7th and 8th and the mornings of the 8th and 9th.

This year the celebration will be of more than ordinary significance because the ideal of the Jewish Holydays is the ideal on which the entire Judaeo-Christian ethical character of Western Civilization is based, an ideal of "Peace, Peace, to those that are far and to those that are near."

According to Jewish tradition, Rosh Hashonah is the anniversary of the creation of the world. Accordingly, it challenges Jews to help build a New World. In recognition of this fact and as a generous gesture of Brotherhood and Cooperation many non-Jewish churches have been known to hold services in honor of this Holyday season.

This day ushers in the ten penitential days during which time Jews seek to make peace with themselves, with their God and with their neighbors. The day is entirely spiritual in its celebration, unlike the civil New Year whose observances stem from the Roman Saturnalia.

The blowing of the Shofar, or Ram's Horn, as a call to repentance, is a picturesque part of the Synagogue Service for the New Year. It was a ram's horn which called people to service and assembly for important proclamations in ancient Palestine. It was a ram's horn that "proclaimed liberty throughout the land to all the inhabitants thereof." This year, too, is a real "Jubilee Year" when "Rosh Hashonah", the beginning of this New Year is a call to a New Era of better understanding, of greater sincerity and dedication to the pursuits of peace.

Testimony Of Jews Appalled Quisling

Vidkun Quisling, fighting back with a violence verging on hysteria, denied at his trial in Oslo, Norway, the prosecution's assertions that he was responsible for the death of 1,000 Norwegian Jews, that he allowed resistance leaders to be executed by the Nazis without protest and that he stole the silver service of King Haakon VII from the Royal Palace.

Quisling, puppet Premier of Norway under Nazi occupation, rolled his eyes and gestured so wildly that Justice Erik Solem asked him a number of times to calm down. He cried hysterically that the last four years "have been a nightmare for me because I had to fight both sides," and proclaimed in a quavering voice that "not many did so much for humanity as I."

The charges that he committed grand larceny agitated him more than the murder charges, and he insisted that nothing must be allowed to spoil his "reputation for honesty."

"Did you say 'honor'?" Justice Solem asked.

Then, when Quisling asserted loudly that he had "been the savior of the Norwegian people through four years—work which was likely to kill the best man," Solem interrupted again:

"Did you say 'kill'?"

Throughout the afternoon Quisling stubbornly refused to give a clear answer as to whether—or why—he had signed the so-called Norwegian Nuernberg law which sent more than 1,000 Norwegian Jews to Nazi horror camps in Poland. Only ten of those Jews survived. Once he intimated he signed the document put before him without realizing its effect.

In an anguished and high-pitched voice he said he had really protected Norwegian Jews and helped many escape to Sweden. He cited his relief work in central Europe in the 1920's as proof of his love for humanity. When accused of manslaughter he said he was the man who had helped more Jews than any one else. This statement so surprised the court that it was some minutes before Solem could turn the trial back to its normal trend. Even Quisling's counsel, Henrik Berg, looked startled.

Prosecutor A. Schoedjt read the charges, accusing Quisling of manslaughter in the death of 1,000 Jews.

Solem asked: "Did you hear about the plundering of Jews—the stealing of Jewish property?"

"The Germans wanted all the Jews' gold and silver," he replied. "Then I wrote Terboven that Norway wanted these valuables to go to the German war effort." He denied knowing that the Germans threw Jews into concentration camps because they were Jews, and said, "I disliked the way the Germans tried to solve the Jewish problem . . . but the Germans did not consult me."

A handful of Norwegian Jews who survived Nazi camps in Poland and returned to accuse Vidkun Quisling as the traitor who sent 1,000 of their relatives and friends to death.

The new accusers were among 49 Norwegians and German witnesses called to the stand at the close of the state's preliminary questioning of the former premier.

Quisling slumped back in his chair as witness after witness told the story of Norway's betrayal and the torture murders of the Norse Jews deported to Poland.

Apparently horrified at their testimony, Quisling stared at the witnesses occasionally running his hands nervously across his face.

Quisling denied all knowledge of the tortures. He protested he had not even known of the existence of the gas chambers and that he had thought the Jews were being resettled in Poland.

Among the witnesses was Dr. Leo Eitinger, one of a group of 162 elderly Norwegian Jews deported to Germany and thence to Poland.

Eitinger said the Jews were jammed into the hold of a ship for the trip to Germany. There they were loaded aboard trains, with 80 men, women and children locked into each car, and transported to a concentration camp.

He testified that all the women and children in his camp subsequently were removed to the gas chambers at Auschwitz, and that 140 of the original 162 in his deportation party "disappeared."

Other Jewish witnesses who followed him to the stand gave similar testimony of atrocities carried out by the Germans with Quisling's tacit or expressed consent.
